CONSERVATIVE TRIES TO FORM CABINET IN GERMANY

Excursionists Cannot Return To U.S.

MANY HELD HERE AFTER VISIT FOR BRIEF HOLIDAY

Parents Separated From Children, Husbands From Wives and Others Fear Loss of Employment Through Immigration Regulation on Former Canadians and English People

Strict Ruling Of Act Is Made

A number of holiday-makers from the United States who came to Victoria on Memorial Day excursions were held by U.S. immigration authorities in Victoria to-day awaiting investigation of their right to return to the United States.

A more stringent interpretation of an old ruling regarding entry into the United States and the right to remain here caused more careful examination of excursionists returning to Seattle, Tacoma and Port Angeles. Many former Britishers and Canadians took advantage of the holiday to return to Victoria where they formerly resided. Some of them had entered the United States when regulations were not so strict, and because of long residence there believed they had the right to remain. A more careful check has recently been made of such cases, but in most instances their return has been agreed to by the department, especially in cases where hardships are likely to be caused by the separation of families.

"The department is usually lenient where the person concerned believed he or she had the right to leave and return to the United States and had resided in the country some time," United States immigration officials stated to-day. After every excursion there are usually some cases held for investigation and the number on this occasion is not unusually large, it was explained.

FAMILIES SEPARATED

In some cases the ruling of the U.S. immigration department worked hardship on the people who were detained. Some had spent all the money they brought with them, others were supposed to go back to their employment in some instances and some cases in which a man from Port Angeles, a former Canadian, who is now a naturalized U.S. citizen, could not take his wife back with him. A Portland woman cannot leave Victoria to return to her children in Portland.

Estimates of those affected run from twenty to 200.

MRS. C. K. CURTIS DIES

Associated Press
Philadelphia, May 31.—Mrs. Cyrus K. Curtis, wife of the widely known Philadelphia newspaper and magazine publisher, was found dead in a bed in a hospital here early to-day. She had been in the hospital for about a week to be near Mr. Curtis, who is reported as recovering from what was regarded as a serious heart attack suffered in New York last week.

New South Wales Is To Have Referendum

Privy Council in London Rules Legislative Council Cannot Be Abolished By Act of Legislature

By Thomas T. Champion, Canadian Press Staff Writer
London, May 31.—The principle that abolition of the upper house of the state of New South Wales is a question that can only be determined by submission to the people is upheld to-day by the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council here.

The Judicial Committee dismissed the appeal of J. T. Lang, former Labor Premier of the state, from decisions of the Australian courts which ruled that his bill aimed at abolishing the upper house was unconstitutional. The governor of the state had refused to sign the bill, which was promoted by the Labor Premier as a result of what he called obstructive tactics by the opposition majority in the upper house.

ELECTOR'S APPROVAL NEEDED

The Judicial Committee's finding to-day was that the bill for abolition of the Legislative Council could not be lawfully presented for royal assent without first having received the approval of the electors in the prescribed manner.

DRIVEN OUT OF CHINA BY REDS

Missionaries Here To-day Escaped From Changchow As Communists Seized City

Plucked Out Beard of Italian Priest, Who Was Saved By College Friend

Red terrorism, which is again in the ascendancy in lawless sections of the country, is driving missionaries out of China. Missionaries reaching Victoria to-day aboard the liner President Jefferson, who were forced to leave China because of the Red menace were: Walter Develier, English and athletic instructor with the Butch Reformed Church of America at Changchow; Mr. and Mrs. Irving, R. Dunlap and their three children, of the Evangelical Church at Changsha; Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Helstead, from Hunan province; Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Vanveenschten, and their three children, and Miss L. Vander Linden.

Mr. Develier stated that the Red activities in some parts of China to-day were worse than three years ago when the Nanking government adopted such strong measures to free the country of communist propaganda.

"The outlook is very dark in Fukien province," said Mr. Develier. "The 19th Route Army, which became famous in the fighting against the Japanese invading forces at Shanghai, was recently withdrawn from that area to cope with the Red element in South China. It is yet to be seen whether this is a political move or an organized attempt to stamp out the growing communist influence."

As recently as April 14 last, six Britishers and fourteen Americans were driven out of Changchow and Luhyien, being forced to leave on the urgent advice of Chinese friends.

STRATOSPHERE TRIP PLANNED

Associated Press
Zurich, Switzerland, May 31.—Prof. Auguste Piccard, who last year in a balloon ascended more than ten miles into the outer atmosphere, says he may decide very shortly to make his next trip into the stratosphere with the Belgian physicist Cosings.

Prof. Piccard expressed a desire to go aloft from a North American point, possibly in Canada, to study the influence of the Magnetic Pole on cosmic radiation.

PLANE FLEET FLES OVER B.C.

Ten Olympic Machines From Los Angeles Go to Tacoma From Vancouver

Canadian Press
Vancouver, May 31.—Ten planes, comprising the Olympic Air Cruise from Los Angeles, took off from the Sea Island Airport at 9:30 o'clock this morning for Tacoma. There were twenty-six persons in the visiting party, led by W. E. Carey of Los Angeles.

When the touring party was welcomed on its arrival here from Seattle at 4:15 yesterday afternoon by Ald. E. W. Dean, chairman of the airport committee, Major Harold Brown, president of the Board of Trade, and others, Mr. Carey explained the purpose of the tour was to attract interest to the Olympic Games, which will open in Los Angeles July 31. He expressed the hope many Canadians would visit California for the games.

Mr. Carey's speedy Travelair plane was the first to reach the airport, the other nine machines checking in at intervals.

Tell Of Transactions In Which New York Mayor Figured

Samuel Seabury, counsel to the committee of the New York State Legislature which investigated the administration of New York City, was reported to-day to be preparing to draft recommendations, among which it will not be surprising if he suggests Governor Roosevelt remove James J. Walker from the post of mayor of New York. During the investigation Abraham H. Schwartz, showman and reality operator (left), testified he had made payments of more than $15,000 to Mayor Walker for "special legal services." Samuel Engleleider, broker (right), testified his firm paid Russell T. Sherwood, former aide of Mayor Walker $31,800 for stock worth approximately $30,000. The men are shown as they appeared on the stand.

SAANICH SETS SCALE OF FEES

High School Students to Pay on Basis of Age

Commencing September 1 Saanich will charge fees for all students at the high schools who have passed their sixteenth birthday. The school board yesterday evening decided to put the following schedule into effect: Students above sixteen, $10 annually; above seventeen, $25 annually; above eighteen, $50 annually; and above nineteen, $100. The fees will be payable in monthly instalments and failure to pay any instalment will result in exclusion from school.

The resolution bringing the above schedule into effect was moved by Trustee William Tomes and seconded by Trustee A. E. Hull. Trustee Tomes desired to add a rider protecting children of indigent parents from assessment, but was defeated by a vote of 10 to 4.

The board was informed that 403 students are now enrolled in the three high schools of Saanich, divided as follows: Under fifteen years of age, 133; passed fifteenth birthday but not sixteen, 128; passed their sixteenth birthday, 136 students.

Trustee Tomes introduced discussion of fees, remarking that any schedule should be devised on a basis of collectability. It was no use to strike a rate which would prove unworkable. He suggested $25 payable after the seventh birthday.

Trustee Hobbs believed a smaller fee, applicable at a younger age, would be more productive of revenue. Trustee Partridge favored creation of a series of scholarships, whereupon Trustee Hobbs pointed out that such a system could not be adopted unless the board agreed to defer that matter for later discussion.

The provision that the schools be closed to students who fail to pay fees was advanced by Trustee Partridge.

Vancouver, May 31.—A two-hour summing up by J. W. deB. Farris, counsel for President L. S. Klinefelter, this morning's session of Judge Peter S. Lampman's inquiry into affairs of the University of British Columbia. It was taken to indicate the inquiry would close this afternoon.

President Klinefelter, Dean Daniel Buchanan of the Faculty of Arts, Dean R. W. Brock of the Faculty of Applied Science, and Dean F. M. Clement of the Faculty of Agriculture, were recalled for brief appearances during the morning.

FIND COQUITLAM CHEQUE NO GOOD

Mailfordville, B.C., May 31.—A $1,225 cheque sent to the provincial government for police work was returned to the Coquitlam municipal council yesterday evening marked N.S.F. The council decided it could take no action in this connection at present.

Liberal Executive Prepares For Fight

Some Constituencies Will Nominate Candidates at Once

Resolution of Confidence and Loyalty in T. D. Pattullo As Leader

New Westminster, May 31.—Liberals of British Columbia are making preparation for the next provincial election which they believe may be held at no very distant date. T. D. Pattullo, leader of the executive of the provincial Liberal convention held in the Legion Hall here Monday, said arrangements were made in several constituencies to nominate candidates at once. A resolution of confidence and loyalty in T. D. Pattullo as leader of the party was passed.

The following resolutions were unanimously passed by the executive after they had been thoroughly discussed:

1. That this executive cordially endorses and approves the policy of the party as enunciated by our leader, Mr. Pattullo.
2. That a committee of ten be constituted to confer with our leader and with Liberal association throughout the province, with a view to the reduction of the party platform to a manifesto form, the same to be submitted to a convention of the party for amendment and final endorsement.
3. That associations be asked to sub-

THUGS KNOCK WOMAN DOWN

Mrs. R. McDonald, Carrying Hospital Money in Edmonton Robbed of $2,600

Bandit Dressed as Woman Snatches Bag and Two Escape in Auto

Canadian Press
Edmonton, May 31.—Knocked to the pavement by a bandit wearing a woman's garb, Mrs. R. McDonald of the office staff of the Misericordia Hospital here was robbed of the $2,600 payroll of the hospital to-day.

The attack was carried out immediately in front of the hospital and the payroll bandits, who appeared to be a man and a woman, sped off across the high level bridge in a grey sedan car. Mrs. McDonald had left a branch of La Banque Canadienne Nationale with the payroll and had reached the street opposite the hospital when the bandits sprang to the sidewalk while a man sat at the wheel of the car with the engine running. The woman did not hesitate, but walked up behind Mrs. McDonald and struck her behind the ear. As she fell to the sidewalk the woman bandit snatched the bag and jumped for the car, which immediately sped off.

Police believe two men shared in the holdup and that the woman who did the slugging was really a man in woman's clothing, the disguise being used to throw police off the scent in the event of a hot chase.

PILOT BROWNE TO FLY AGAIN

Aviator Who Fell at Seattle Yesterday Is Not Through With Flying

Associated Press
Seattle, May 31.—If he had a plane, Nathan C. Browne, New York flyer, would not hesitate tackling the hazardous North Pacific again. He said so here to-day.

The former-Texas cowboy, who pioneered air mail routes over the South American Andes, was uncertain to-day just what he would do next, but he was emphatic in denying his narrow brush with death with his plane shattered during a mid-air refueling attempt yesterday had "cured" him of his desire to fly to Tokio.

"I feel I am lucky to be alive," he said, "but I would try it again tomorrow if I had a plane."

"At no time was I sold on refueling a commercial plane," he said. "I was full load, and when I saw the trouble we were having I had just made up my mind to go back and fill up with gasoline at the field when it happened."

GUNS TAKEN BY BURGLARS

City Sporting Goods Store Entered and Three Automatics Stolen

Three automatic revolvers and ammunition to go with them were stolen by thugs who broke into the sporting goods store of Wilson and Lenfesty, 1224 Government Street, yesterday evening.

The burglary, police investigations revealed, was a well-planned one and apparently done by experts. The stock of weapons and ammunition in the place was inspected by the intruders before they inspected the revolvers they wished. The things they did not take were strewn in confusion at the back of the store.

Detectives William Stark and Charles Cremer conducted the investigation with Inspector John McCallan. They discovered the burglars had taken a devious route of entry into the place. Apparently they had gone on to the roofs of nearby stores from Johnson Street, slid down a vent pipe into an alley, cut through a plate glass window into a barber shop, then through a window into an alley at the rear of the sporting goods store. Using a back saw they cut away an iron bar protecting the rear window and then removed a pane, forcing entry to the place.

The burglary was discovered at 8 o'clock this morning and an inventory of the stock showed three weapons missing with ammunition.

Vancouver Has Cheque For $86,981 From Dominion and Province

Canadian Press
Vancouver, May 31.—A cheque for $86,981 was received by the city this morning from the provincial authorities, representing portions of the Dominion and provincial shares of relief costs in Vancouver.

Of the total, $62,987 was for half-federal and half-provincial shares of direct relief in the last week of January and the first week of February. The remainder was for the Dominion share of unemployment relief work for the last few days of February and first few days of March.

WOMEN OPEN CONVENTION

Civic and Native Sons' Welcome Extended to Canadian Daughters' League

Delegates From All Over Canada Gather in Shrine Auditorium This Morning

A civic welcome from Alderman H. O. Litchfield, representing Mayor Leeming, and a welcome from Reginald Hayward, M.P.P., representing the local Native Sons of Canada, were extended at the opening of the annual session of the Grand Council of the Canadian Daughters' League in the Shrine Auditorium this morning. Sixty delegates representing Canadian Daughters' conventions all across Canada are in attendance, and will remain until Thursday evening.

After tracing in his address of welcome the record of the Canadian pioneers, Alderman Litchfield remarked: "I can only carry you back to the wonderful message of the old Hebrew prophet: 'Watchman, watchman, what is the night?' Women of Canada, the night is far spent, and the dawn of a glorious day for Canada is at hand."

Reginald Hayward, M.P.P., in bringing a message from the Native Sons, reminded the convention that the Imperial Economic Conference would meet in two months' time, and that the Canadian Daughters' League might well have some valuable suggestions for the members of the conference to consider.

Mrs. T. J. O'Neill, Kamloops, grand president, replied to Alderman Litchfield and Mrs. J. B. Stewart, Edmonton, grand second vice-president, to Mr. Hayward.

Mrs. Edith Todd, a past grand president, extended a fitting welcome to the delegates on behalf of the Victoria Canadian Daughters. News in history.

NAZIS STATE THEY WILL WIN ELECTION

Herriot, Who Is Expected to Be New French Premier, Says Germany Need Not Fear Selfish Acts By France

Canadian Press and Associated Press

Berlin, May 31.—President Paul von Hindenburg this evening asked Franz von Papen, a member of the Conservative Centrist Party, to form a cabinet to succeed the ministry of Dr. Heinrich Brüning, resigned.

Berlin, May 31.—Adolf Hitler's National Socialists to-day turned their backs on participation in the German government until the verdict of the people has been obtained at a general election following the dissolution of the present Reichstag.

A spokesman for the Nazis informed the Associated Press party leaders were certain an election would give them a clear majority, and in the meantime they would have nothing to do with a stop-gap cabinet.

This statement came while President von Hindenburg, who forced the resignation of Dr. Wilhelm Brüning's ministry yesterday, was conferring with party leaders in an attempt to provide the nation with a new government.

STONES AND BULLETS

In fashionable Bendelerstrasse there was a demonstration that assumed serious proportions. Police were stoned and they retaliated with their pistols, wounding a woman. Three policemen were injured and six demonstrators arrested.

Dr. Ludwig Kaas, in behalf of the Centrists, told the President that in view of the dismissal of Dr. Brüning his party was not interested in the formation of the cabinet. Dr. Brüning is a Centrist.

Dr. Alfred Hugenberg, leader of the Nationalist Party, said the attitude of his followers would be determined by the personality of the man summoned to form the new ministry.

Adolf Hitler, whose views on all important matters of foreign policy, including relations with the Soviet Union, of Dr. Hugenberg, already had seen the President.

Joseph Goebbels, Hitler's mouthpiece, openly voiced the Hitlerite demand for dissolution of the Reichstag and a general election. He was cocksure in the belief the voters would put the Nazis in the place of power.

FOUGHT BY COMMUNISTS

The prospect of the rise of Hitler's Fascism to power has aroused a storm of protest from the Communists. The general committee of the party issued a communique declaring the Fascist course of the coming government constituted a menace to the Soviet Union, it called the German workers to "revolt against an imperialistic war."

It was understood the question of the best time to hold such a meeting was not gone into by Mr. Mellon and Sir John Simon.

Mills, Secretary of the Treasury, had told the finance committee the revenue bill it now stood would raise $840,000,000 and that $1,125,000,000 would be needed, the amendment was approved. The amendment of Senator Connally, Democrat, Texas, was approved. It was estimated this would bring in upwards of $70,000,000.

income and 8 per cent on income above $4,000, with a surtax graduated to a maximum of 55 per cent on income in excess of $100,000.

Income rates previously voted by the Senate were 3 per cent of the first $4,000; 6 per cent on the next $4,000 and 9 per cent on income above $8,000, with a maximum surtax of 10 per cent.

NEW ESTIMATES

At a meeting of the Senate Democratic finance and economic committee last night, called by President Hoover in the White House yesterday evening, new estimates calling for an additional $200,000,000 in taxes were disclosed.

Associated Press
Washington, May 31.—Within a h hour after President Hoover to-day h endorsed a special manufacturers' sales tax before the United States Senate. Its finance committee again rejected this disputed levy. The vote was 10 to 8.

Earlier in the day, President Hoover had adopted the unusual course of addressing the Senate in person.

He declared he did not favor a "general sales tax"—a system providing levy on every sale from wholesaler

The President also outlined a project of federal aid which would broaden greatly the lending powers of the Reconstruction Corporation, so it could advance funds to the States and municipalities for public works and municipal utility projects to private industry, start business recovery.

STOCKS FALL

AT NEW YORK

Canadian Press

New York, May 31.—The New York Stock Exchange suffered one of its sharpest reactions of the year to date while the Senate struggled to find additional taxes to throw into the budget bill hopper.

Net losses ranged from $1 to about $4 a share to principal issues.

An afternoon rally, coincident with President Hoover's personal appearance before the Senate, was short-lived—a slump, closing around the day's low.

German and French governme bonds were lower, doubtless in reflection of the Reich's political situation, but the investment-market generally was weak.

United States Steel common broke about $1.50 to a price below $56, while American Telephone, losing more than $3, sold under $29. American Tobacco "B" dropped $4. Bethlehem Steel, consolidated Gas of New York, Allied Chemical, National Biscuit and Santa Fe Railroad were among many down $2 $3. Transactions approximated 1,500,000 shares.

Quebec, May 31.—Fear that Canada will lose a good customer was expressed yesterday evening by a French Consul-General in Canada, who deplored nothing but the fact that the Canadian commercial treaty, which will expire June 16, the Consul-General addressed a group of Quebec merchants gathered at a farewell dinner. Mr. Carteron, who is returning to France for three months, said: "The commercial relations of Canada and France are about to enter a difficult phase. The commercial treaty will be June 16 and nothing has been done to revise or renew the treaty. It is regrettable to realize amicable relations are coming to an end and much good work will thus go to waste. From June 16 on high tariffs will separate our two countries and will undoubtedly lose a good customer—principally a steady purchaser of wheat."

They were set off in a railway station near the military academy, beside the Senate building, near the Ministry of the Interior, in front of the offices of the newspaper Politico and in front of the workmen's insurance office.

NEW FRENCH CABINET PLANS

Herriot Expected to Form

Canadian Press
Paris, May 31.—A general expectation that the new French cabinet which is slated to take office soon after June 4 under the leadership of former Premier Edouard Herriot, Radical Socialist leader, would be a combination of Radical Socialists and Republican Socialists was expressed to-day.

Such a government would be a concentration on the left centre, the Radical Socialists, largest group in the new chamber, being much more moderate in tendency than the Socialists led by Lede Blum. This would carry out the prediction expressed following the French general election, that Edouard Herriot would not again tie his party up with the Socialists in a revival of the "left center" that was in power following the general election of 1924.

The Socialist programme was overwhelmingly approved by the general congress of the party as soon as it had been presented by the committee on resolutions.

SCIENCE TO AID SALES OF COAL

Canadian Press
London, May 31.—Hope for the British coal trade lies not in politics but in science, according to Rt. Hon. Walter Runciman, President of the Board of Trade.

Moving second reading of the government's coal mines bill in the Commons yesterday afternoon, the minister begged everyone connected with the industry to exhaust the scientific possibilities in the production, sale and use of coal.

George Hall, Labor member, moved a censorious amendment and offered to prove that wages paid in the so-called wasteful industries were actually higher than those in certain section of the mining industry.

Quebec, May 31.—(Canadian Press)—Premier L. A. Taschereau of Quebec will seek an appeal from the judgment handed down in the Superior Court at Montreal last week by Mr. Justice de Lorimier declaring ultra vires the Quebec Workmen's Compensation Act of 1929, and the commission appointed to administer the act.

Mr. Justice de Lorimier's ruling would be appealed to the Supreme Court of Canada and to the Privy Council in London if necessary, the Premier said.

RUSSIANS SEE WAR MENACE

Associated Press
Moscow, May 31.—The government organ Izvestia yesterday charged certain Japanese elements with seeking an invasion of eastern Siberia to "facilitate Japan's preparations for war against the United States by making available for the Japanese military machine the rich natural resources of Asiatic Russia."

In a sharp warning to Japan not to try to lay her hands on Siberia, the vigorous editorial pronouncement called attention to "recent demands in certain sections of the Japanese press for war against Soviet Russia."

Declaring the resources of Manchuria first were sought, the Izvestia said intelligent Japanese public opinion could not be relieved of responsibility for the silence in the face of such a campaign, "which might lead to the sending of millions of people to a bloody slaughter."

"The Soviet Union does not demand anything of Japan except esteem of its borders," the editorial said.

BIG SCHEME

Montreal Wants Dominion

000,000 Relief Plan

Canadian Press
Montreal, May 31.—The civic administration of Montreal will approach the Quebec government to-morrow with a suggestion of a $20,000,000 programme of works—trunk sewers, aqueduct development and metropolitan boulevard construction—the cost to be divided equally between the Dominion, provincial and civic treasuries. The administration believes this programme would give work for at least a year to come.

Two other steps calculated to furnish relief to unemployed were taken by the administration at a meeting yesterday. The first was diversion of $120,000 of city funds into the direct relief account to take care of the families of unemployed people for another month, pending a new agreement between the Dominion, province and city, to take the place of the agreement expiring at midnight to-morrow.

The second step was application to bankers for $5,000,000 for working capital to allow continuance of the relief works programme, held up due to lack of available funds, and to open the 1932 local improvement programme.

UNDERMINING THE CONFERENCE

ON MAY 24, AS PARLIAMENT WAS nearing the end of its session, Mr. Mackenzie King proposed to the Prime Minister that in the spirit of Empire Day the Canadian government exempt British goods from the increase in the excise tax on imports from one to three per cent which was about to be put into effect pending the Economic Conference. This, he said, would be a "gesture which would mean that the government really desired to see trade within the empire furthered through the reduction of duties in a way which would permit of the flow of commodities into this country, to be followed by a similar flow into all parts of the empire."

Mr. Bennett resented this very reasonable proposal in a speech of inexplicable bitterness. He charged the opposition leader with insincerity, with "talking to the galleries." "Those of us who have followed the speeches of the right honorable gentleman who has just spoken," he said, "would realize that a very short word of four letters would describe the utterances to which we have just listened. But I shall not use that word: it may not sound well in Parliament." Mr. Bennett continued his strictures at some length in the same vein, fairly burning with indignation that Mr. King should ask him to do such a terrible thing as to exempt British goods from the increased excise tax on imports pending the forthcoming Economic Conference.

The debate which followed was short and lively. Mr. Lapointe reminded the Prime Minister that all he was being asked to do was only what the British government had done in its tariff provisions in respect of imports from the Dominions pending the Economic Conference. Why should that proposal stir up so much wrath on the part of the Prime Minister? Why should he brand it as "bunk?"

The proposal, proper enough in all conscience, of course was rejected with contempt, but the incident has an ominous significance as a contribution to the atmosphere in which the approaching conference will be held. It is somewhat reminiscent of the preparation Mr. Bennett made for the abortive conference in 1930, when before going to London, he raised the customs duties against a large number of British products which he declined to reduce, although he demanded in his "take-it-or-leave-it" ultimatum that Great Britain give a free preferential market for Canadian wheat. If that is the spirit in which the government at Ottawa is going to approach the postponed conference in July, if a proposal to give British imports preferential treatment in Canada over foreign imports in respect of new tariff increases as a gesture of good-will in preparation for the approaching conference, is to be regarded as "bunk," what prospect can there be for the success of this momentous gathering?

Of equal significance was an editorial article in The Montreal Star which at considerable length approved of Mr. Bennett's outburst and severely criticized Mr. King for making the proposal which aroused the Prime Minister's ire. In this article appears the following pregnant paragraph:

"The Bennett government must stand steadily on guard against any serious sacrifice of Canadian interests, even on so worthy an altar as improved imperial trade. No true friend of imperial trade, indeed, will desire that a bargain be struck which the Canadian people can not keep. It must be a fair and profitable bargain all round. Our difficulties must be taken into account as well as the desirability of binding the empire together economically. The drive, for instance, that is being made from some quarters to reduce Canadian currency to the sterling basis should be very carefully considered and decided on economic and not on sentimental grounds. We must remember that we owe more than four billion dollars in the United States, which must be paid over the barrier of whatever exchange exists against us. Inflation might serve as a temporary cocktail, but it would cost us a very high price."

This and similar articles in other newspapers supporting the Bennett administration, read in conjunction with the Prime Minister's reaction to the proposal made by Mr. King on Empire Day, may be interpreted as indicating that as far as Canada is concerned her government is not going to modify the attitude which wrecked the conference in London in 1930, "even on so worthy an altar as imperial solidarity," to quote The Montreal Star. It will claim that such modification would "seriously sacrifice Canadian interests," an ancient complaint which has been used against the British preference ever since the Laurier government introduced it in 1897, a complaint which was shown to be utterly devoid of foundation. It is as plain as a pike-staff that our flag-waving, pocket imperialists have no intention of reviving the preference they killed so ruthlessly two years ago, and that there is to be no "bargain that the people of Canada can not keep," another hoary old alibi against tariff reductions in the interest of inter-imperial trade.

The Economic Conference can not be successful unless every Dominion is ready to make substantial tariff concessions to the others; unless each is dominated by the desire to buy from the others as well as to sell to them. If all of them are determined to maintain tariff protectionist policies on the old pretence that any considerable modification of them will involve the sacrifice of their local interests, the whole scheme of empire economic solidarity will collapse, with far-reaching consequences that no true friend of the empire would care to contemplate.

HERRIOT AND GERMANY

ALTHOUGH M. EDOUARD HERRIOT says the resignation of the Bruening government in Germany is "most disquieting," at a luncheon in Paris to-day he declared that France did not wish to base her prosperity on the misery of any other people, and while he did not specifically mention Germany, he added that no one need fear any "selfish act" on the part of France. "I give this assurance at a moment when our French opinion is so misunderstood in a world in which so many false ideas persist concerning us."

As the next Premier of France—of this he is almost assured—M. Herriot may before long have to deal with a Germany controlled by Hitlerites. It may be, of course, that Hitler in office, if he should succeed in obtaining it, would be different from the Hitler who is now more like a bull in a china shop. But he has said enough in recent months to stiffen the backs of the militarists of France. Unless he becomes more mellowed as his power increases, M. Herriot's task in preserving friendly relations with Germany will be none too easy.

Whether French opinion is misunderstood or not, one thing is clear, and that is no matter what government is in office at the Quai d'Orsay, French policy which is directed to keep Germany in subjection will be disastrous to France in the end. Europe in ruins, with France top dog, would be a poor triumph for French imperialists. M. Herriot no doubt realizes that the more friendly his country's relations are with Germany and her 67,000,000 people the better it will be for France. But if a Fascist Germany should emerge from the present political disturbance and hot-heads get out of hand, France naturally will look after herself.

IN WEST YORK

ALTHOUGH THE CONSERVATIVE candidate succeeded in retaining the Ontario seat of West York for the Henry government, the majority won by Dr. Forbes Godfrey, whose death caused the contest, which was 3,885 in the general election of 1929, was cut to 972. Moreover, in 1929, Dr. Godfrey had only one opponent, a Liberal, but in Saturday's contest the government candidate, Mr. Harry I. Price, was opposed by a Liberal, a Laborite and a Socialist, whose combined vote—essentially anti-administration—totalled 9,872, or 3,003 in excess of that of the successful candidate. For the first time in a decade, West York has elected a Conservative on a large minority vote.

It is interesting to compare the distribution of Saturday's votes in this constituency with those of the general election in 1926 when the chief issue of the campaign was the liquor question. On that occasion Dr. Godfrey polled 9,927, with a Prohibitionist and a Liberal polling a little more than 6,000 between them. In the general election of 1923, however, Dr. Godfrey completely ran away from his opponent, an Independent, piling up a majority of 8,791 in a total vote of a little less than 20,000.

With this history of the voting in West York, it is rather difficult to understand just what Premier Henry meant when he said that the result on Saturday gave a "feeling of confidence to Canadians generally—not only in Ontario." The fact is, the Conservative vote of 14,338 in 1923 has dropped to 6,869, while the Liberal vote alone has increased from 2,919 in 1926 to 5,897, and this in a fight with the government candidate facing three opponents. If the verdict of the electors on Saturday means anything at all, therefore, it is that the present administration of Ontario is becoming progressively weaker, and must be blind if it can derive any satisfaction from the result of this by-election.

WHAT OTHER PAPERS SAY

MUST BUY TO SELL
 The Brockville Recorder and Times

It is clear that a country possessing such an exportable surplus as Canada is vitally dependent upon sales to other countries for any prosperity that it may enjoy. Such sales are not always possible if there is an unwillingness on the part of Canada to buy. If we would sell, we must therefore, also buy, and it is just this fact which will have to be faced if the Imperial Economic Conference, upon which such high hopes are being pinned, is to prove successful.

A CONTRIBUTION
 The Winnipeg Free Press

Honor is due the Radio League of Canada for the fight which it has put up under the presidency of Mr. Graham Spry for the public ownership of radio in this country. Organized in 1930, the League has been alert in the interests of that principle and with very little money but a great deal of enthusiasm, has served as an effective focus of the mass of opinion which favored this policy. The work was all voluntary and reflects credit upon the citizenship qualities of the young men who fostered it, not only for the quality of the endeavor—the campaign was managed with considerable astuteness—but upon the interest taken by young Canadians in vital issues before the country.

BELIEVE IT OR NOT
 The Salt Star

Some rather interesting things have been observed about Sam Dodd's wolf. The animal will not take a second drink out of his drinking dish, without the water being changed. That is he won't drink water that is not fresh no matter how thirsty he may be. He purposely upsets the dish as soon as he takes a drink. His habits about meat are more recording. In the summer if he gets a piece of meat at all tainted—or which he thinks is so—he will paw it for a minute or so but not touch it with his teeth. Then he will dig a hole eighteen inches or two feet deep and bury it for a day. As soon as he digs it up again he again sniffs at it and if it isn't up to wolf standards, he will bury it again in a new hole for another twenty-four hours. The animal has never been known to bury it a third time. The meat is satisfactory always after forty-eight hours' treatment. Query: What effect has the burial on the meat?

Last winter meat being scarce, the owner boiled a corn meal mixture for the wolf. The only way he would eat it was to take it from the fingers of his owner. The animal has been fed meat and bones and other food from the hands of the family and in all his nineteen months of life he has never nipped anybody's fingers. Sam gives it a good character—"an affectionate animal."

"He is very careful to gnaw a bone in the right place," says Mr. Dodd.

The wolf is so tame that he has been allowed to run loose on some of his exercise trips and has never shown any inclination to decamp. He licks the fingers of the children in the neighborhood.

Loose Ends

Singing in the bath tub and the historic significance thereof—beauty everywhere but in the flesh—stuffed tigers—silent bears—and accomplished cowboys—these are some of the loose ends of our civilization.

By H. B. W.

AN EDITORIAL in this paper the other day quoted some great authority, whose greatness I suspect, as explaining why men sing in their bath tubs. This gentleman's explanation was that bathrooms are usually tiled (which they aren't, and only a small fraction of the houses of America have any bathrooms at all, according to a recent survey) and make a good sounding board for men's voices. Therefore, men sing. This is absurd enough, but what I object to is the falsity of the general proposition, that men sing in their bath tubs, if they have any. Men don't sing in their bath tubs, not many of them. The idea that they do is just one of those myths, those legends which seem to be the very stuff of our civilization.

IT IS NOT important, perhaps, whether men sing in their bath tubs, unless you happen to be in the apartment next door, when it might matter a good deal. But it is important that such a legend can survive simply because it is good material for the professional joke writers and cartoonists. It is important and alarming because, by the same process, other far more dangerous legends survive and distort the entire face of modern life. You will easily think of a hundred equally absurd myths—that all men hate their mothers-in-law, that as a matter of fact, they usually get on very well together; that the younger generation is more immoral than its parents were; that politicians are more dishonest than other folk; that you can be healthy by refusing to eat potatoes and wallowing in fruit juices; that the world is going to the dogs.

PERHAPS the most misleading and most distressing legend of all is that women can be made beautiful by artificial means, that in fact, women are beautiful nowadays. To perpetuate this legend the world has invented time by the most notable conspiracy of all history. The myth is shouted at you from every magazine and every billboard and whispered to you in saccharine tones over the radio. Nine out of ten pictures in all forms of publication are of women, and nine from another planet, reading our magazines, newspapers and billboards, would imagine that we had created a perfect race.

WE HAVE now progressed so far that we believe it ourselves, despite all the evidence to the contrary. Even since the bath tub argument started me thinking on serious things, I have been observing this phenomenon of womanly beauty. I have examined countless flawless women on paper but so far, after a week's observation, I have been unable to find a single one in the flesh. No, not one beautiful woman have I seen on the streets of Victoria, the very streets where movie advertisements, billboards and drug store windows maintain such a barrage of female beauty as would make an unsophisticated man dizzy. But all are artificial. We are all deceived by the conspiracy. We are all deluded by the legend. We have finally reached the point where we believe that all the homely women we see everywhere about us are the exceptions to the general rule. We have more faith in the pictures than in our own eyes. Ours is a civilization built not on the proposition that all men are born free and equal, but that all women are beautiful and all men sing in their bath tubs.

AND SPEAKING of beauty, I think of the modern idea of feminine perfection, the silky, slinking, over-perfection of the movies was never better described than by Ayako Nishikawa, of the sixth grade of the Royal School of Honolulu. This young observer writes: "Norman Shearer, the magnificent star, exploits on the screen, and she is kept as one of the most beautiful beauties. She looks excessively repose. Her hair is just delightful. It is so undulating that I think it is hard to comb it. Her eyelashes are tedious and they are exceedingly cute. When she commences her scene, her eyelashes go, reluctant as it is, did it for intentionally. Her lips are not so spacious but pearly. Her nose is not so inadequate nor are they too comparative. They are just upright. She exploits so pungently that she is known as one of movie stars." Try singing that in your bath tub.

THE LITTLE GIRL from next door was over here just now to give me some further information concerning her recent experiences, which I found highly enlightening from a scientific standpoint. "What d'you suppose?" said she, having disappeared into my armchair except for the soles of her shoes. "I saw the parade on the fortieth of May, Um, um. There was animals and everything, but no elephants, 'cause they don't let elephants go to the parade on the fortieth of May, 'cause they're too big and heavy. There was a real lion, monkey and he had a face just like our little baby bruvver, but it was brownish and had a beard; and baby bruvver hasn't got a beard. Um, um. And there was a tiger, and it was stuffed and it was alive, too. I suppose it was greedy and stuffed itself at dinner, and it wagged its tail from side to side. But it didn't move much 'cause no one likes to move much when they're stuffed. When I'm stuffed I just want to go to bed."

SO THEN we went to the museum. You know the museum? Well, the museum is over at the Parlant Buildings. There's lots of animals over there; lions and tigers and big bears and deer and little birds. And what d'you suppose? They're searched all the animals over at the museum to stand still all day, so they don't move a-tall. They're all stuffed, too. They get stuffed every night after the Parlant Buildings are closed. And they're as good as good can be and never move a-tall, even if you pat them. And if you pat the bear on the head he doesn't even squeak like my little bruvver's rubber bear squeaks.

SO THEN we came home and went to see Sheppard's new cows. You ought to see Sheppard's new cows. (I had seen Sheppard's new cows and I was sure that I could appreciate what was to follow.) And what d'you suppose? Those new cows of Sheppard's, they all milk themselves right into a pail through a rubber tube, 'cause they know how. I guess those are extra special cows of Sheppard's when they can milk themselves. And, she concluded magnificently, "Sheppard has five new bulls and three of them is boys and four of them is girls. I guess he's proud of them all right." "Yes," I said, "I should think he would be, all right."

Twenty-five Years Ago To-day

THE VICTORIA DAILY TIMES
 MAY 31, 1907

(From The Times Files)

The driving track at the exhibition grounds is now practically completed and there remains only a few finishing touches to make it second to none on the Pacific Coast. The road has been considerably widened, thus giving plenty of room for the greatest excitement has been given to the banking of the turnings, in order to avoid all possibility of accidents from over-running.

Weather forecast—Victoria and vicinity: Southerly and westerly winds; partly cloudy and cooler.

In view of the fact that Victoria is about to pass the control of the parks and boulevards into the hands of a board of commissioners with the object of further beautifying the city, it is interesting to know what other cities are doing along similar lines. Tacoma has taken a forward step in this direction.

Entries for the men's annual championship golf tournament of British Columbia and Bostock Cup which is to be held at the Oak Bay links, commencing on Saturday, June 1, and finishing on or before June 15, should be made at the secretary's office.

A "UNITED FRONT"

To the Editor—Mr. Hans Kroeger's letter in your issue yesterday, necessarily as it was to correct a reporter's error, does not do much to clarify the situation referred to. It is perfectly true that the government reform movement in the province, apparently the United Front Council, nor has this representation been sought by either movement. The government movement is a growing movement every day, seeks to co-ordinate all types of workers, without any class or social distinction, be they pick and shovel men, office clerks and bus drivers, and they have embarked on that very difficult task of solving the riddle, "When is a worker not a worker?" The line of demarcation is to be drawn by the inner council from whose verdict there is no appeal. As I have already pointed out, the United Front Council policy may lead to a united front but will so narrow that front that it can only hope to create a salient in the opposition's entrenched position. The result of their endeavors, therefore, will be to create yet another political party, still further confusing the real issue which is the substitution of a better political and economic system for the discredited one now operating so ruinously. Two blacks, however, do not make a white, and the average two-by-four politician (whose name is legion) convinced as he is of the failure of capitalism is far from ready to change from one form of autocracy to another, be it the autocracy of labor or even the proletarian. Rather does he think (when he does think, which is not often) in terms of mass direction, not mass coercion, more individual freedom from slavery of any sort, economic or political. We have already too much coercion by governments in things that do not matter, too little legislation in the things that do, too much regulation and too little emancipation, too many restrictions, too many taxes and too many tariffs. Consequently we live in an atmosphere of distrust—of the United Front looks with suspicion on government reform and vice versa. Why cannot we all get together, preserving our own identity but all determined alike this unjust and greedy selfish system, together with its class quarrels and depression; once and for all, we shall need all our forces to the fight ahead. Why play the enemy's game of disintegrating ourselves? Can we afford to disregard any offer of assistance against an opposition far better equipped with the sinews of war?

I am not condemning the United Front. They are, I am convinced, a very earnest body of citizens, imbued with a sincere desire to help their fellow-men. They, at any rate, have cast aside the deadly stupid apathy, the static mesmerism that hangs like a fog over the intellects and ambitions of most of us. They are, I think, a body of men who are not afraid of the blundering into chaos, heedless of the fact that hamstrings and prosperity are just around the corners of Courage and Co-operation.

TENDIE IN SPAIN RIOTS

Extremists Clash With Police and Troops in Number of Cities

Madrid, May 31.—One man was killed and at least ten more or less seriously injured during twenty-four hours of syndicalist riots in Spain up to to-day.

The slain man was Francisco Gil of Murcia, who was killed when his fireworks shop was blown up. His five children were seriously burned. At Ceuta strikers broke into food stores and ransacked them. Civil guards fired into the air and dispersed the strikers, arresting the leaders. Authorities closed three syndicalist headquarters and cordons of police were placed about all public buildings and churches.

 At Valencia a young man was wounded as he was leaving a theatre. BOMB SET OFF IN CADIZ
 A powerful bomb exploded early this morning near the rear entrance of the city hall in Cadiz, damaging some of the municipal offices and nearby buildings. One man was wounded and six arrested during two gun battles with police during the night.
 At Denia six to ten strikers were arrested several farm workers charged with attempting to force others to join the strike. The masses of the city struck and tried unsuccessfully to paralyze all traffic.
 At Seville forty were arrested after an unknown assailant had wounded civil guard in the back. Strikers fit on two street cars, breaking the windows, but injuring no one.

 Other traffic in Seville was at a standstill. Troops were ordered to maintain in their barracks, ready to the any movement toward general order.
MACHINES DESTROYED
 In towns near Seville strikers burnt twelve harvesting machines and wounded one farmer.
 The first of the extremist riots, Spain broke out on Sunday. Authorities here said the bomb uncovered at Seville last week was attributable to the monarchists, to Left groups.

TEACHER ENDS "BEAR GARDEN"

Delegation Protests Proposed
Dismissal of Married Teacher
By Saanich Trustees

West Saanich Residents
Proud of School Since Mrs.
Parberry Appointed

Declaring that West Saanich school had been transformed from "a bear-garden" into an institution of which the whole community was proud, parents of two-thirds of the children attending the school yesterday evening protested in a body to the Saanich School Board against dismissal of Mrs. Nina Parberry.

Loren Thompson, principal spokesman, said the parents had heard Mrs. Parberry was to be replaced because her husband was a professional man. The children should not be penalized to maintain any fixed policy in the opinion of the delegation.

The children had shown remarkable progress under Mrs. Parberry's training during the year she had been at West Saanich. They showed a willingness to learn and a courteousness such as had never previously been known at the school. "We no longer hear the youngsters say 'this one got the strap for three errors.' Instead we hear 'I am trying to do so and so, to please Mrs. Parberry,' he said.

CHILDREN TRANSFORMED

Reginald Carrier said "the moral tone of the school has been entirely changed. It is no longer a bear-garden. You can hear a pin drop. The children politely address people, they hold doors open for visitors, are courteous and gladly study their home work."

The formal resolution of last year's board, requesting the resignation of married teachers whose husbands were able to support them, was read to the delegation, the grounds being the large number of experienced teachers needing employment.

Chairman F. V. Hobbs said there was nothing personal in the board's attitude, Mrs. Parberry being recognized as a most excellent teacher.

Mr. Thomson told Trustee Partridge that only one parent in the district opposed employment of married teachers on principle. That lady was expected on the delegation, because of the improvement shown by her children.

Trustee W. S. Thorpe said the problem could best be viewed as a personal matter. "How would any of you like to see your daughter, trained as a teacher, workless while a woman with an employed husband holds a position?" he asked.

EMPLOY RESIDENT

Mrs. W. West asked that if Mrs. Parberry were replaced the position be given a Saanich girl. "There are lots of them requiring work, surely the position need not be given a teacher from the city," she said.

The chairman promised careful consideration of the representations. Following retirement of the delegation, Trustee Partridge insisted upon exclusion of the press before discussion took place. "Since this matter was raised last week I have been pestered by people until I feel like refusing to carry on any longer," he complained.

Chairman Hobbs subsequently announced that the board had arrived at no decision for publication.

RETURN TO JAPAN

Shanghai, May 31. (Associated Press)—Three Japanese army transports bearing the last of the expeditionary force of approximately 100,000 which fought here last winter, sailed today for Japan. The only Japanese force now remaining here consists of about 2,500 blue-jackets who will carry on the usual garrison duties in the International Settlement, the same as other foreign detachments.

RELIEF WORK WAS COSTLY

Short Roadway to Mt. View
High School Exceeded Appropriation

Over-expenditure on the grounds of Mount View High School, was discussed yesterday evening by the Saanich School Board, the cost being over $700, instead of $400 allowed for construction of a road from Carey Road to the school.

H. H. Allen, municipal engineer, explained the cost included stumping and grading of grounds and preparation of flower beds. Changes in the plans had been a factor and substitution of hand-work under the relief system had increased the expense.

The original estimate had been for road construction using machinery.

Employment of relief workers had been found more expensive than using the regular staff on hand work, at a wage of $2.80 daily. Extreme wet weather had also been a factor in increasing the cost of the work, which had been carried on to provide work for men on relief.

Mr. Allen said it was impossible to get many of the relief men to do a real day's work. When fathers of families sat on stumps and smoked they could not be discharged.

The board then decided to invite bids on construction of a road to Wascana Street, parking spaces and sidewalks around the school.

UNION MEETS END OF JUNE

Important Session of Municipal Bodies at Nelson Next Month

Unemployment relief, social service costs and educational costs will be the three main topics of discussion at the annual convention of the Union of British Columbia Municipalities, to be held in Nelson next month. It was indicated in a communication from the secretary of the union, considered by the City Council yesterday evening.

Dates for the convention have not been fixed yet, but it is expected to be some time during the last week of June.

While these subjects were the main items considered at the special convention of the union here this spring, they will again be thoroughly threshed out next month. The session, it is anticipated, will be one of the most important since the organization of the union.

Resolutions from the Victoria council will be formulated shortly. The legislative committee yesterday evening was empowered to draft motions of any matters which should go before the union.

NO CHANGE IN STREET NAME

Pandora Avenue to Retain Identity as Far as Foul Bay Road

Pandora Avenue, from Oak Bay Junction to Foul Bay Road, will remain Pandora Avenue as far as the City Council is concerned, and will not be changed back to Oak Bay Avenue.

This decision was reached yesterday evening as the result of a petition from residents of the area seeking the change. The historical significance of the name "Pandora" was pointed out, and it was further stated that when Pandora Avenue was completely paved, the plan of having the name cover the full length of the street would be justified.

A similar fate met a petition from the same residents seeking elimination of local improvement taxes on the property fronting on the street. After hearing a lengthy report on the matter from City Treasurer Edwin C. Smith, the council decided that this could not be done.

EGG-THROWING INCIDENT CLOSED

Victorians Not Indicted By Actions of Few, Says Port Angeles Mayor

As far as the council of the City of Port Angeles is concerned, the egg-throwing incident there recently is completely closed and can be forgotten.

This was the sentiment conveyed to the Victoria council in a letter read at the meeting yesterday evening from the mayor of Port Angeles.

"No apology for the incident was necessary," he wrote. "We realize that in a large gathering of any nationality there must be a few who cannot be depended upon to conduct themselves properly. We are not inclined to indict the people of Victoria as a whole on account of two or three persons."

The incident referred to was one in which a number of Victoria youths, while on a picnic at Port Angeles, threw eggs at a group of Japanese youths.

SAYS QUARTERS BEST IN WEST

McDowell and Mann Complimented By Leading Plumbing Trade Journal

The handsome new show-room, workshop and offices of McDowell and Mann Limited, corner of Douglas and Courtney Streets, are the subject of a special illustrated article in the current issue of The Sanitary Age of Toronto, the national business paper of the Canadian plumbing, heating and ventilating industries. Three photographs show interior and exterior views of the premises, together with the following information:

"This enterprising firm located in its new quarters last November, and reports excellent sales results from the use of its larger, splendidly appointed showrooms. Only the latest up-to-date fixtures are shown in the plumbing division, and a number of carefully chosen colored plates give an effect pleasing to the extreme."

The show-room is large, and there is not the slightest suggestion of crowding, despite the large number of products displayed. Oil burners and heating goods are shown along one wall, and utilizing one window completely.

"The shop facilities are exceptionally good. A large sliding door permits trucks of all sizes up to the huge transport type being driven right into the shop proper. Floor space for pipe sove a troublesome problem. Brass cases, well located quarters for cast iron enamel stocks, soil pipe, fittings, etc., save time and cut down overhead."

"McDowell and Mann are to be heartily congratulated on their modern place of business. From Winnipeg to Victoria there is no finer showroom and shop, and very few in Toronto or Montreal can approach it for combined beauty and utility."

EMPIRE COIN IS SUGGESTED

Special Currency For Dominions Recommended By Chamber of Commerce

Adoption of a uniform currency for trade within the Empire and establishment of free port areas at strategic points within the Empire to facilitate the distribution of Empire goods, featured a resolution drawn up by the Victoria Chamber of Commerce and passed at the directors' luncheon yesterday.

The suggestions were aimed to form discussion themes for the forthcoming Imperial Conference in Ottawa. They will be forwarded to Premier Bennett and Hon. H. H. Stevens through the Canadian Chamber of Commerce.

DEHYDRATION PLANT PLANNED

Lake Hill Site Chosen To Take Surplus Loganberry Crop

Erection of a plant for the dehydration of loganberries, as a partial outlet for the overflow of strawberries from Saanich producers this year, is planned. It was announced in a letter from the Holsum Packing Company, before the City Council yesterday evening in which the company asked permission to construct the plant on the property leased by it at Lake Hill.

It was pointed out that the loganberry production this year is estimated at about 600 tons and the producers face the possibility of having no market for their berries. The dehydrating plant would take a portion of the crop. The structure, it was stated, would be a substantial one, fireproof and of sound construction. A company mainly consisting of fruit growers has been formed to handle the industry.

The land committee of the council was instructed to investigate and report back to the council.

Dehydration and processing of fruits and vegetables will be explained to the Keating Co-operative Fruit Growers' Exchange at Brentwood Hall this evening at 8 o'clock. Dr. W. Newton, of the Dominion Experimental Station at Sidney, will be the speaker.

In view of the inception of dehydrating of berries on a commercial scale in Saanich this year, officers of the exchange urge all members to be present at the meeting.

Bring Back Prosperity

In times like these...

more than ever, life insurance is a boon to all—to the Uninsured as well as the Insured.

As its premiums accumulate they are promptly used to assist in purchasing homes, in aiding farmers and financing industry—thus keeping Canadian citizens gainfully employed.

It insures more than Life—it helps to provide work for the breadwinner, and Food, Comfort and Shelter for his family.

It supports the Nation, too—the collective enterprise of all the people. During the Great War, for instance, the Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada itself subscribed for $70,000,000 Canadian and allied government war loan bonds.

Last year the Sun Life subscribed $23,000,000 to Canadian government issues. A portion of the proceeds of these loans was to relieve unemployment. Even the jobless share indirectly in the benefits of life insurance.

The Sun Life is an important factor in restoring prosperity to Canada. For over sixty years it has been privileged to serve its policyholders and proud to serve the State. To-day, its world-wide organization and facilities make it more serviceable than ever to the whole community.

WHINING BRINGS CHILD GOOD RETURNS

If there is any one habit of a child that arouses universal parental ire, it is the whining child. Crying is irritating enough, and children do seem to go through periods when their mouths are open most of the day, but whining is the drip-drip-drip that wears the stone away.

Whining does not spring up overnight. It is a growth. Walter has discovered that just asking for some privilege earns a quick and unthinking, "No," so he begins to whine.

IT'S THE TONE

"What can I do? Play with me. I do not want to play alone. Why can't I go outdoors? Give me something to eat." It is not the words, or even the requests, it is the tone, that thin, high twangy note that melts or stizzles the mother down. Here may be a reluctant submission, but it is a victory for the child, and thus the whining habit is established.

If a parent could rid herself of the perverse desire to thwart the child, whining would have little chance to become established. She thinks, poor soul, that this frustration is for the child's good. She points with pride to his array of toys, to his extensive wardrobe, to how well he is fed and cared for. "What else can he possibly want?" she cries.

RESTRICTIONS

But when the child wants to go one block away to play with a crowd of boys, she says quickly, "No, you stay at home in your own yard." Mother would worry about you? When he goes out and begins to throw mudballs on the sidewalk, she calls him in and reminds him that the sidewalk has just been cleaned, "I would think you could see that, Walter." When he begins to whine, eventually she says, crossly, "For goodness' sake go on out and play. I'll be a raving maniac if you do not." And, taking advantage of the irritation, he says eagerly, "Can I go down to Pete's?" and she agrees reluctantly that he may go.

Whining is a real weapon, one to keep handy and use often. It works when nothing else will. To follow the mother about and whine appealingly gets the child whatever he is after. Then the mother says despairingly, "Oh, if he would only ask for what he wants without whining, I would be glad to give it to him. But when he whines I just will not."

But the child's experience has been otherwise. If it had not been to whine, he would not have learned to whine.

TEMPORARY WHINING

There may be unusual situations which develop whining. The sick child, the fatigued child are both given to whining as an expression of their weakness and helplessness. But this whining is temporary and disappears when the child feels equal to the battle of existence.

It is hard for the mother to be deaf to such an irritation and not to say threateningly, "Now stop, or I'll give you something to whine for," but that doesn't clear up the situation. Perhaps the cause is lack of playmates, weakness, insufficient liberty. Most of the things for which children whine are perfectly harmless and permissible. They should be allowed before the child's frustration and irritation leads to whining. Then he won't learn to make use of this master trick.

Women Are Modest!

"Scant bathing suits do not mean that women lack modesty," says Dennis Lysaught, chief of police for Savannah Beach, the idyllic bathing centre for Georgia and South Carolina. Lysaught is serving his twenty-second continuous year as a member of the force. Women wore skirts and trousers to midcalf when he first patrolled the beach. "Short suits are just a matter of custom, and are sensible," he maintains. "Abbreviated skirts do not mean a corresponding shrinkage in modesty."

COUPLE PLAN WORLD FLIGHT

Frank J. Lynch, New Jersey, to Be Accompanied By Wife on Flight Around Globe

Springfield, Mass., May 31.—Lieut. Frank J. Lynch, Summit, N. J., who described himself as a war-time flying instructor at San Diego and a former movie stunt pilot, has announced details of a 40,000-mile round-the-world flight in a monoplane, now nearing completion here. Lynch expects to make the tour with his wife, the former Josephine McKee, St. Paul, Minn. Their plane is a high wing monoplane and will have a cruising speed of 175 miles an hour and a top of 210. Lynch said he and Mrs. Lynch planned to start from the Newark, N.J., airport as soon as tests of his plane could be completed and go westward to the Pacific Coast. The couple hopes then to fly north to Nome and across to Siberia by way of Berling Strait, going to Vladivostok. Continuing southward, they plan to cross the Malay Peninsula, and then hop over water to Canada and back to New York by way of Iceland, Greenland and Cochrane, Ont. Lynch is a native of Waterbury, Conn.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

By SISTER MARY

One of the best habits to establish in one's family is that of eating raw fruits and vegetables. Children especially should be urged to do this, for aside from the benefits received in general health, this type of food helps to develop the teeth.

Certain foods are admirably suited for use in their natural state, but one precaution must be kept in mind—they must be very carefully washed. The widespread use of commercial fertilizers and sprays for both fruits and vegetables makes thorough washing of utmost importance.

Practically all the fruits, all true nuts and many of the vegetables may be eaten uncooked. The so-called "starchy" vegetables require cooking to make them more quickly digested and palatable, but lettuce, celery, radishes, onions, cabbage, tomatoes, carrots, cucumbers, sweet peppers, the endives, and green and romaine lettuce, especially, are well adapted for eating when eaten raw.

COOKING INJURES VITAMIN C

Vitamin C—that food substance so effective in preventing scurvy and so necessary for health and growth—is made less potent when cooked. Vegetables also suffer mineral losses in varying amounts through cooking. Cabbage has been found to be a heavy loser in iron. Onions also are heavy losers in mineral constituents. So, since these vegetables are quite palatable and can give their full value uncooked, why spend time and effort in cooking them and making them less useful?

There are many appetizing ways to use uncooked vegetables. Grated, they make excellent salads and sandwiches for children. At this season of the year raw carrots, new turnips and beets are delicious and so sweet and make an inviting and colorful salad.

Although raw fruits and vegetables have little value as sources of energy, they contain certain mineral salts which are quite effective in the process of elimination.

All the fruits and vegetables which can be eaten raw play an important part in efficient nutrition and should be used regularly. Sometimes their cost seems rather high, but usually a trip to the market makes it possible to find bargains. When lettuce is high cabbage can often be substituted. Carrots can take the place of celery. New onions are always inexpensive in the spring. Fresh fruits, such as bananas and apples always are cheaper than pie and cake and all the fruits as they come into their seasons provide delicious and inexpensive desserts.

Nuts are a nutritious food supplying worth-while fuel value and when added to a fruit or vegetable salad, do much to increase its nutritive value. Since nuts are protected by a shell they are exceptionally clean and suitable for eating raw.

Some combinations for raw vegetable salads may suggest others to you. Fruit salads are so widely used the recipes seem unnecessary.

Over $20,000 Raised For English Variety Artists' Fund

London, May 31.—The King and Queen yesterday evening attended a performance of music hall stars in aid of the Variety Artists' benevolent fund at which over $20,000 was realized.

An audience of nearly 3,000 persons jammed the Palladium, where the performance was staged, while many thousands more stood outside to cheer Their Majesties. The King and Queen expressed delight at the show, which included numbers by Vesta Victoria, who once more sang her celebrated song, "Waiting at the Church"; Harry Champion, Marie Kendall, Fred Russell and other old-timers of the British vaudeville stage.

Were you ever half-way there when you had a blow-out?

Have you ever been within six pages of finishing a mystery novel when your aunt's second cousin came to spend the afternoon?

Of course all these interruptions have occurred over and over again as well as a million others. Life is always laughing behind its hand. It must play its little jokes. And we let it worry us to death. As a rule we are very poor sports when it comes to frustration or interruption.

Have you ever stopped to think that such occurrences do harm in only one way—our own state of mind? Human beings are too imaginative. They persist in thinking of what might have been instead of what is.

Sometimes I think that if we could emulate the alligator, completely relaxed in mud, we too could live a thousand years. But of course you answer, "Who wants to be an alligator?"

Briefly, this matter of constant irritation at life and its jokes is a very wearing thing. I am not a fatalist, but I do think the philosophy has its points. We are concerned enough to think that no plan should be interrupted. Every plan will be interrupted whether it is a cake or a trip to Europe—in some way, at some time, in some unexpected manner. Why not expect it and be ready for it—mentally.

PATIENCE MUST BE LEARNED

The cultivation of patience, oh no, not that outward control that merely covers a seething spirit, but real patience—that faces facts contentedly as they come—we cannot have it when we are adults if we haven't learned it as children.

Right here we come up against that theory of "interrupted impulse." We know that children are interfered with too much and parents are being warned about it. A child trying to work out an idea should be allowed to carry his impulse to a finish.

It is an excellent idea and full of truth. But when two truths clash they must make way for each other. And these two truths do clash. How is a child going to learn philosophic acceptance of the unexpected if he is always allowed to carry his plans through without going "agley" as the poem says about mice and men?

When accidents or interruptions happen we must learn to laugh and try again. We are excellent examples to our children. It seems to go in families. If the baby comes in and musses up the puzzle picture Bob had half completed, don't let him get mad. Say, "Bobby, remember how Daddy joked last night when Snobby walked over the porch floor he had just painted. Laugh now and go at your puzzle again."

It pays. Such training will save Bobby a million worries that may otherwise take ten years off his life.

Had had dizzy spells

Afraid to leave house . . . feared awful dizziness would make her head over. She needs Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in tablet form.

Good-by "one feature" gasolines!

EVERYONE wants split-second "quicker starting"—but not at the cost of good mileage. All of us want more "power"—but we also want a motor that does other things besides pull.

Actually, your motor needs three different kinds of energy. And you are bound to get engine waste from old-fashioned gasolines. They may have plenty of one kind of energy but too little of another.

Now in one fuel all three vital energies

"QUICK ENERGY"—the energy you need in a hurry for starts, shifts, bursts of speed.

"POWER ENERGY"—the power flow for miles of smooth, economical driving; pull without strain.

"ANTI-KNOCK ENERGY"—to eliminate knocks in today's high-compression motors.

What about anti-knock?

In a long series of octane rating tests made of every non-premium fuel now being sold in this market, the new Shell 3-energy gasoline has consistently scored the highest anti-knock rating of them all.

Never in your life-time have you known a motor fuel like this. It is colored golden amber for your protection.

Shell service stations and Shell dealers.

Reduces engine waste!

SHELL 3-energy GASOLINE

You are sure of Shell Shell service men, sea/ every station tank when they fill it with gasoline. Thus you know what you are getting when you buy from a Shell pump.

BEDTIME STORY

Uncle Wiggily's Carpet Trick

By HOWARD R. GARIS.

Mrs. Longears called to her rabbit husband one morning as he came along down the stairs talking to get his breakfast.

"Wiggily," she said, "I wish you would speak to Buster and Custer."

"Why should I speak to those boys?" asked Mr. Longears. "Have they been naughty?"

"Oh, not at all," exclaimed their mother. "Quite the other way, they have been very good. But I want them to do something for me and if I ask them they may have some excuse for not doing it."

"What do you want them to do?" asked the rabbit gentleman as he began to eat his carrot oatmeal at the breakfast table. All his forty-seven sixteen bunny children had finished eating and were playing out in the bungalow yard before it was time to go to school.

"What do you want Buster and Custer to do?"

"I want them to beat the front room carpet," said the rabbit lady. "The carpet is very dusty. Nurse Jane and I have begun our spring bungalow

"You can try your strength cleaning. We have taken up the carpet and hung it over the clothes line in the yard. But the carpet needs whipping with sticks to knock out the dust. Buster and Custer can do it but if I ask them they may think it is a lot of work and they'll find some excuse. So I thought if you told them they'd be glad to do it."

"I'll ask them," said Uncle Wiggily with a laugh. "I'll play a little trick on them so they will think the work of beating the carpet is the best kind of fun. Leave it to me."

Uncle Wiggily, having finished his breakfast, hopped out to the yard where the rabbit boys and girls were playing. Going close to Buster and Custer, who were standing near the carpet on the line, Uncle Wiggily said: "Johnnie and Billie Bushytail are very strong, aren't they?"

"Those squirrels strong!" exclaimed Buster. "What do you mean, daddy?"

"They aren't as strong as we are," said Custer, boastful like.

"Oh, aren't they?" asked Mr. Longears, twinkling his pink nose and trying not to smile. "I thought they were stronger. Why, yesterday I saw them take big heavy sticks and beat a carpet for their mother. The dust, which they knocked out of the carpet, made a cloud so thick I couldn't see through it. Oh, those squirrels must be much stronger than you rabbits."

"Ho! Ho!" laughed Buster. "They are not, are they, Custer?"

"I should say not! Why, we're twice as strong as they. If we had a carpet to beat we'd knock out so much dust that there'd be two clouds!"

"Oh, would there?" asked Uncle Wiggily, quietly. "Well, boys, here is a carpet you can try your strength on. Perhaps you may do better than the squirrels did, but I'm not sure. Still, here's the carpet and he pointed to the one his wife and Nurse Jane had hung on the line.

For the first time Buster and Custer seemed to see the carpet. They looked at each other and then at their father. They knew, now, there was no getting out of it.

"All right," said Buster. "We'll beat the dust out all right."

"Sure!" exclaimed Custer. "We'll show those squirrels! Where are the sticks, daddy?"

"Don't beat the carpet now," said Mr. Longears. "Do it when you come home from school. Run along now and after school show me how strong you are. I really hope you are strong."

He went on. "Are you sure you can do it? Perhaps I had better get Johnnie and Billie."

"Ho! Ho!" laughed Custer. "We're twice as strong! We'll show you!"

"Sure we will!" cried Buster. "All right," said Uncle Wiggily with a smile. "I'll have the sticks all ready for you when you come home from school. I'm glad I have such strong

"The Plains of Abraham"

By JAMES OLIVER CURWOOD

(Copyright by Doubleday Doran Co., Inc.)

Almost at the door to Jeems's home, war preparations were in progress. For every landed baron along the Richelieu was training his vassal farmers, and when the wind was right, the barons could hear faintly the twice-a-week firing of muskets at Tontout Manor. Being free of the seigneurial protection and laws, Henri did not go to drill. Nor did Jeems. Yet Tontout rode frequently to his home, especially when Hepsibah was there. He was in better spirits than usual, and it was all on account of Toinette, he said. She was home from the convent. Her letters to him were filled with a longing for it, and she declared that, in another twelve months, when her schooling would be finished, she wanted to live at the manor and not in Quebec. That was enough to make him happy, and he laughed at the thought of danger for womenfolk along the Richelieu—in the fortified places. The English and their savages would not get near the lower end of Lake Champlain when war came; and he never was driven from there very shortly, and also from Lake George. But on a quieting farm as the Richelieu place, which had no protection whatever, there was the possible peril of wandering scalp hunters and he never tired of urging Henri and Catherine to make their home within the safety of the seigneurie.

He asked Jeems and Henri to come to his drill, and that they did not respond made no difference to his friends. He could understand how hard it would be for Henri to prepare for war against his wife's country, and his secret adoration for Catherine was greater because of her courage and her faith in both peoples with the catastrophe so near. It delighted him to think that his own confidence was a comfort to her, and the eagerness with which she accepted his opinions and encouraged him to go beyond what Hepsibah considered inflexible bonds in giving assent to her mind. He did not guess what was in Jeems's heart. Only Hepsibah knew fully what was there.

Early in the autumn, the trader took Jeems on a journey to the English fort on Lake George, thence traveling into the New York country, returning in November. She found a change in Catherine. She was not less confident or less contented in the paradise she was helping to build, but something had come into her life which she was accepting bravely and courageously and even with pride. One evening, she spoke of the military activities along the Richelieu. Many river youths were training with their elders, she said, and it did not seem right that Jeems should not be among them. While killing was wicked and inexcusable, it was a God-given privilege to defend one's home and family. She quoted Tontout to substantiate her belief that war would never reach them, and she knew that Jeems would not seek it any more than his father. But she thought it would do no harm to Jeems to prepare himself along with the other young men of the seigneurie.

To this suggestion Hepsibah's homely philosophy made objection. He told Catherine the day was coming when Jeems would be compelled to fight and he would have to choose one side or the other to champion. When that day arrived, sentiment would stand in the way, for, with a world of boy rabbits," he said as Buster and Custer hopped on to say their lessons to the Lady Mouse Teacher in the Hol-low stump school.

"Well, what about it?" asked Mrs. Longears as her husband hopped back into the bungalow to put on his tall silk hat before going to look for adventures.

"Buster and Custer will beat the carpet all right," chuckled Mr. Longears. "I played a little trick on them—telling them how strong their squirrels' children were when they beat their mother's rug—and the trick worked fine. Just wait."

Something very strange was soon going to happen about this carpet beating trick. You shall hear about it to-morrow night. Then the story will be about Uncle Wiggily's carpet tent. And I hope you can stop the tea from going roller skating with the gas stove when the loaf of bread wants to go to sleep in the oven to keep warm. If you can you may win the prize of a lollipop stick.

in turmoil about them, one could not be English and French at the same time. No man could tell on which side they would be when forced to it, and as he displayed a traitor more than anything else, it was his opinion that Jeems should not be taught the ways of war under the flag of France and then, it might be, fight for the English. As a frontiersman, he maintained that the finest fighting man was the Long Rifle, a free wanderer of the forests, a leather-stocking trained to a hundred grayer things than the firing of a musket in company with a score of others. That was what Jeems should be. As a Long Rifle he could serve where honor and duty called him when the act became necessary.

This discussion was the beginning of another phase in Jeems's life. It placed before him certain definite obligations of manhood which even his mother had to recognize, though she wanted to hold him as long as possible in his boyhood years. During the next year he made several trips with Hepsibah, going to Albany and as far as the country of Pennsylvania. Each time he returned to his home something held him more closely to it.

In the autumn of 1754, after four years at school, Toinette returned to Tontout Manor.

Peace and happiness lay over the Richelieu. It had been a splendid year for France along the frontiers. Washington had surrendered at Fort Mifflin, and Villiers was triumphant at Fort Duquesne. England and France were still playing at the hypocritical friendship. While they played, thrusting at each other secretly and in the dark, not an English flag was left waving beyond the Alleghenies. French arms and Indian diplomacy were victorious along the Ohio and westward to the plains. The policies of the British Royal governors were alienating their Indian allies, and in spite of their million and a half population against eighty thousand in New France, Dinwiddie had frantically called upon England for help. In response, England was sending General Braddock.

In a double rejoicing over Toinette's homecoming and his country's success at arms, Tontout planned a levee and barbecue at the seigneurie. Hepsibah was away at the time, which disappointed the baron, who insisted that Henri and his family must attend the celebration or he would never call them friends again.

Jeems felt a thrill growing in him as the day drew near. He was no longer the Jeems of Lussan's place as he set out in the company of his father and mother with Odd peering along faithfully at his side. In January he would be eighteen. The alert and sinuous grace of one of the wild things of the forest was in his movements. Catherine was more than ever proud of him and rejoiced in the clearness of his build, in his love of nature and God, and in the directness with which his eyes looked at one. But she was not more proud than Hepsibah. Adams had seen in this pupil of his flesh and blood the qualities and courage, the lock, stock and barrel, as he called it, of a fighting man.

Jeems was anxious to see Toinette, but with this desire they remained none of the old yearnings which had once oppressed him. She whom he was going to regard to-day was a stranger, one into whose presence he was determined not to force himself again. This resolution was not inspired in him by a lack of boldness or an uncertainty as to his own social fitness. An immense pride upheld him. The spirit and freedom of the forests were in his blood, and behind these was also the spirit of Hepsibah Adams. He knew that he could meet Toinette coolly and without embarrassment should they chance to stand face to face, no matter how splendid she had grown. And he realized there must be a great change in her. She was fifteen now. A young lady. At this period of life, five years seemed long time and he thought it was possible he might not recognize her.

An overwhelming moment of shock seized him when at last he saw her. It was as if a yesterday long ago had come back into this to-day, as if a picture which had been burned and scattered into ash had miraculously been restored.

She was lovelier. But she was the same Toinette. He could see no change in her except that she had become more a woman. Hepsibah's work, his own, his freedom, and his courage were dispelled like dust as he looked at her, and once more he felt himself the inferior before offering her nuts and feathers and maple sugar and praying in his childish way that she might smile on him. This was not a new Toinette removed another million miles away from him, as he had supposed she would be, but the old Toinette, commanding him to slavery again, and making his blood run hot in his body.

With a group of young ladies from the neighboring seigneurie, she had come down from the big house, and he was almost in her path, with Peter Lubeck at his side. It was Peter who advanced a step or two toward them. Except for his action Toinette would not have turned. Jeems thought. He pulled himself together and stood with his head bowed, as cold and impassive in appearance as a soldier at attention, while his heart beat like a hammer. Toinette had to face him to return his companion's greeting.

It was impossible for her not to see him when she made this movement. But there was a slowness in her discovery, an effort to keep from looking at him which was more eloquent than words. It had not been her desire to speak to him.

If he needed courage, it was this enlightenment which gave it to him. He inclined his head when she met his gaze. Her face was flushed, her eyes darkly aglow, while his own cheeks bore only the color of an autumn wind. He might never have known her, so unmoved did he stand as she went on her way.

She had slightly nodded, her lips had barely formed a name.

Hop acreage on the lower mainland this year has been curtailed. It was heard at the Parliament Buildings to-day, there being a little over 600 acres planted. There is a slight increase in tobacco acreage over 1931. Demand for British Columbia tobacco has greatly increased during the last year, owing to the improved methods of curing this product and the outlook for the future is most promising.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING RATES

110 per cent per insertion

Minimum charge 25c

In computing the number of words in an advertisement, estimate groups of three or four figures as one word. Dollar marks and all abbreviations count as one word.

In estimating the number of lines in an advertisement, count five lines for each line of text, and one line for each line of illustration.

Any claim for rebate on account of error or omission must be made within thirty days from the date of the same, otherwise the claim will not be allowed.

Advertisers who desire it may have their advertisements placed in the Times Office and forwarded to the advertiser's address. A charge of 10c is made for this service.

Subscribers wishing their addresses changed should notify this office, as well as the publisher, of any change, and a copy will be sent to the publisher.

INDEX TO CLASSIFIED ADS

The eight major groups of Classification appear in the following order:

Announcement classifications 1 to 12

Employment classifications 13 to 22

For Sale—Wanted classifications 23 to 32

Automotive classifications 33 to 42

Real Estate classifications 43 to 48

Business Opportunities classifications 49 to 52

Financial classifications 53 to 57

Postage Stamps

II—OF EUROPE

If you had been a collector of postage stamps in the year 1849, you would have had a grave hunt to find a stamp you might possess. Up to the end of that year, only 181 varieties had been issued since the British post office put out the one penny Queen Victoria stamp.

In later years, nations printed stamps of many kinds; and by the beginning of 1860, the number was 2,011. Up to the present, about 65,000 kinds of stamps have been issued. If you had a collection with that many different stamps, you would be very rich. Some stamps are rare and have high value.

No complete collection exists in the world; but many persons in many places have stamps in large numbers. Some stamps are worth large sums, but I should not advise you to collect stamps with the purpose of growing wealthy. The hobby is better for spending money than for making it. You might enrich your grandchildren by collecting stamps, but it is not likely that you will add to your own store of money.

It is possible, however, to enrich yourself in another way than making money if you collect stamps. All over the world, even in the "back of Africa" postage stamps are being issued. Almost every stamp has something about it which may add to the store of your knowledge.

A fine collection might be made from stamps issued in Europe. Here is a stamp with the mark "Helvetia," a poetic name for Switzerland. It is the picture of a boy with a bow. Yes, the boy is the son of William Tell—hero of the legend in which the father shot an apple from the head of his son.

Another stamp, with the name "Norve," was issued in Norway. It bears a figure which looks like a lion, but the animal has a tail too long for a lion; and it also swings a hatchet or axe—a trick which no lion could perform.

Still another stamp, bearing the picture of a church with two steeples, comes from Denmark; but we notice that the name is spelled with two "a's." We spell the names of several countries in Europe in a different manner than the citizens of those countries.

(This may be placed in "Hobby" section of your scrapbook.)

To-morrow—Stamps of Africa.

Stamps of Switzerland, Norway, Denmark and Latvia.

Proper Ventilation Removes Cotton Dust Hazards

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN

Industrial physicians have learned the extraordinary amounts of dust constantly inhaled by workers may produce symptoms dangerous to health and to life.

Dust may injure the human being in two ways: First, merely by their mechanical presence, clogging up the tissues and interfering with their activities.

Second, through special sensitivities, so that the individual responds with asthmatic symptoms or other signs of sensitivity.

A special committee of the British government has recently reported the results of an investigation made in the cotton industry, particularly to determine the extent to which the lungs are injured. The dust liberated during the process of stripping and carding includes fragments of cotton hairs and of leaf and seed coat, various germs and fungi associated with the cotton and some mineral matter.

The greatest amount of dust is found in Egyptian cotton. Much of the dust is due to lack of adequate cleaning of the cotton in blowing rooms, but most dust is due to failure to keep the machines clean and to remove dust which has settled on them.

Examination of workers in the cotton industry shows that merely an ordinary bronchitis due to irritation by the dust. There were, however, some cases of sensitivity to cotton. The use of proper ventilation, suction apparatus, and cleaning procedures will reduce greatly the amount of discomfort and ill-health.

The sickness rate from diseases of the nose and throat and lungs is much higher among workers in the carding room than among other operatives in the cotton industry. Of course, regular examinations of operatives ought to be made so that symptoms could be controlled in their earliest stages.

An exceedingly interesting fact determined in the investigation was the presence of a substance called histamine in the dust. Histamine is the protein which produces exceptionally severe reactions in the human body even when present in small amounts. No system of ventilation known will be able to free the operatives entirely from exposure to histamine.

This observation is an example of the highly technical studies necessary in modern industry to protect the health of employees.

LANGFORD TENNIS.

Langford tennis team played its first league match of the season on Sunday afternoon, their opponents being eight members of the C.P.R. team.

The local team won the ladies' doubles, broke even on the men's doubles and won three out of four of the mixed doubles.

The final result being a win for Langford six matches to two.

The following are the scores: The visitors' team being mentioned first: LADIES' DOUBLES.

Mrs. Mess and Miss T. Sluggert lost to Mrs. A. F. Baylis and Mrs. W. G. C. Johnston, 1-6, 4-6.

Mrs. J. R. Clarke and Mrs. Stewart lost to Mrs. E. F. Le Queune and Miss C. Brotherton, 1-6, 6-5, 7-9.

J. R. Clarke and J. McCutcheon won from E. F. Le Queune and J. Wilkinson, 6-4, 6-3.

W. Peden and L. McClellan lost to D. McClean and P. Colclough, 4-6, 2-6.

MIXED DOUBLES.

Mrs. Mess and J. R. Clarke lost to Mrs. A. F. Baylis and P. Colclough, 4-6, 4-6.

Miss G. Sluggert and J. McCutcheon won from Mrs. W. J. C. Johnston and A. D. McClean, 6-4, 6-2.

Mrs. Clarke and W. Peden lost to Miss C. Brotherton and E. F. Le Queune, 4-6, 4-6.

Mrs. Stewart and L. McClellan lost to Mrs. E. F. Le Queune and J. Wilkinson, 16-6, 6-2, 4-6.

After viewing Warner Baxter's latest Fox dramatic romance, "Amateur Daddy," which is at the Dominion Theatre, one is vividly impressed with the fact that the screen has again returned to first principles, and wisely so. With a powerfully human story to tell, it tosses all screen trickery to the winds, forgets all of the so-called modern treatment of drama, and unadornedly presents a straight-from-the-shoulder way in a manner that grips one in the region of the heart.

The story, delightfully combining the rugged beauty of California's pictorial outdoors with the simplicity and charm of its rural life, is unvarnished around the unusual, whimsical romance of a bachelor who set out to adopt a family of waifs and found a wife. Warner Baxter, as the bachelor, engineer, once more portrays the likable, kind-hearted, human type of person which has endeared him to the film fans of the world.

ROMANO THEATRE.

When Marion Davies made a trip to Europe before starting work on "The Bachelor Father," her new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer starring vehicle now playing at the Romano Theatre, she knew just what kind of clothes she wanted to wear in the film. Therefore when she came home it was not all surprising that her luggage boasted a few extra trunks. For the building, decoration and preparation of the wardrobe, Paul L. Stein directed this drama.

EMPIRE THEATRE.

Aside from members of the cast and extra players, more than three hundred men and women found employment during the preparation and filming of the picture "A Woman Commands," now at the Empire Theatre. Thirty-seven phases of industry were represented in the elaborate production of "A Woman Commands," a Serbian locale, thirty years ago, made it necessary to manufacture furniture, weapons, uniforms and even materials which could not be obtained in U. S. markets. In addition to the ordinary activities of architecture, building, decoration and preparation of the wardrobe, Paul L. Stein directed this drama.

Winnipeg, May 31.—Influenced by sharp setbacks at Liverpool, grain prices went into a fractional decline here to-day. Values at the close were 1/2 to 1/4 lower for the day.

May eased 1/4 to close at 62 1/2, and July and October each declined 1/4 to 62 1/2 and 64 1/2, respectively.

No trade for export could be traced. Weakness at Liverpool was credited to doubt about the German political situation. There was little pressure to either sell or buy until late in the session when a burst of selling for profit entered the market.

The tone of news was quite bullish. No improvement was reported in the United States winter wheat belt, while twelve points in the west reported rains. These were offset by increasing reports of heavy grasshopper damage, more especially in southern Manitoba. Indifferent trade featured the cash wheat and coarse grain sections with prices inclined to ease slightly.

To-day's Grain Markets

WINNIPEG

(By Logan & Bryan)
Winnipeg, May 31.—Wheat: While local wheat prices were lower, being 1/2 down from the close last night on the extreme bulge, the local market acted stubborn and gave a very good account of itself, everything considered and finally recovered most of the earlier loss. The Chicago market was decidedly weak, prices breaking 2 cents from close on Saturday, while the stock market again broke into new lows.

Winnipeg wheat opened fractionally lower, based on the weakness in Liverpool, but at the start there was some fair buying for seaboard, but after this was satisfied the market turned quiet, and the extreme lows were made with some selling for Chicago account.

These offerings were finally absorbed by locals, commission houses and some buying against the daily bids and the market reacted, local offerings being very tight to-day.

Country marketings yesterday 687,000 vs. 610,000 year ago, and it is evident that farmers are rushing all surplus wheat to market in order to secure the 5 cent bonus per bushel, which expires on June 15.

The cash market was a quiet affair to-day with the demand extremely light, possibly reflecting the small export business out of this market overnight. Spreads were weaker, being generally 1/4 to 1/2 off, based on July. The North American wheat visible decrease was rather small. The U.S. being down 1,402,000, while the Canadian decreased on 521,000 bushels.

Light showers were reported from southern Saskatchewan and southern Alberta and more or less unsettled weather is forecast during the next twenty-four hours. Further showers also received in parts of the winter wheat belt.

Canadian government report is due this afternoon and private U.S. reports due tomorrow morning, and there are indications that the winter wheat yield will be reduced from 25,000,000 to 30,000,000 bushels from the May first reports.

Winnipeg futures closed 1/2 to 1/4 lower.

Coarse grains continued on the quiet side with a little scattered liquidation in the pasting month. Rye was weak, no export sales reported.

Oats closed 1/4 lower to 1/2 higher. Barley 1/2 lower to unchanged. Rye 1/4 to 1/2 lower. Flax continued dull and weak, closing 1/4 to 1/2 lower. No interest shown. Liverpool due 1/4 to 1/2 lower on Winnipeg.

Mr.
And Mrs.—

DEAR MISS DIX—My mother is a natural-born business woman and my father always has been right with him in the business. She has reared seven strong, healthy children and must say she never neglected us. We are all married and out in the world now, but we do not go home very often because mother cannot take time from her office to visit several days with us. Her servants make us perfectly comfortable, but that is not what we want. We want to sit alone with her by the hour and visit instead of having to sit in her office and get a few words in edgewise when people are coming and going. Mother is so pleasant and good-looking and happy and successful, but I cannot help but hope the day will come when she will stay at home and I can go home and visit and visit with her. I wonder if other children feel the same way?

MRS. G. E. B.

Answer—Probably they do, because the trouble is that when a woman does a man's work everybody expects her to go along and do a woman's work, too. Undoubtedly your mother has added very much to your material comfort and welfare by being a business woman. Because she was a good money-earner you have been able to have a better education, live in a better house in a better location, have better clothes and more ease and comfort than you could have had if you had to depend only on your father for support.

But you are not satisfied with the material things. Undoubtedly you want all these, and in addition you want your mother's time and petting and attention and her interest in your baby's first tooth and what sort of solemn you shall put on the kitchen floor and how to cook spinach and on. You want to gossip with her by the hour, and all of that is perfectly natural but rather unreasonable, do you not think? As unreasonable as trying to have your cake and eat it, too, always is. But we all do it.

Your criticism of your mother, however, turns the spotlight again on the difficulties that the woman encounters who tries to combine business and homemaking. It is an almost impossible task to accomplish successfully because each is a career in itself, and from their very nature they are antagonistic, since each seeks to monopolize all of her time and attention.

Furthermore, each career is willing to cede nothing to the other. The man doctor or lawyer or shopkeeper or private secretary is expected to be prompt at her desk, as willing to leave town on a moment's notice to secure order or to go on a long lecture or concert tour as if she had no sick boy at home, anybody to leave with her little children, no husband to object her goings and comings.

And the husband of the professional and business woman expects her to be just as good and economical a housekeeper and as devoted a mother and to meet him in the evening with a glad, sweet smile, rested and refreshed, as if she had not had a hectic day at the office or had not stood for hours on her feet behind a counter or had her nerves frazzled to tatters by cranky customers or a surly boss.

And the children expect just as much of their mother and need her just much as if she had nothing else to do but to watch over them and kiss their hurt places to make them well and tell them bedtime stories.

And there is no way out of this predicament unless the modern business woman evolves a sort of benevolent Mrs. Jekyll and Hyde personality and a twenty-four-hour day, so she can do the work of two women and be a hustling business woman and a leisurely domestic woman at one and the same time. And that, as the English say, would take a bit of doing.

DOROTHY DIX.

EAR MISS DIX--We are a young married couple with two small children. I do all my own work besides looking after the children. What we want know is: Does my husband or myself have the easiest time? We argue great deal about this, but have agreed to abide by what you say. B. G.

Answer—I really think that in the case where the husband makes the living and the wife does the housework and rears the children that she has an easier time than he does if you want to split hairs in weighing a matter where the scale is so nearly balanced.

the reason I say this is because if the woman uses any intelligence whatsoever, she can always slip out an hour or two during the day for a nap or for a visit or reading or amusing herself in whatever she desires, whereas the man has never a minute during working hours that he can call his own if you expect the time he takes off for lunch. Also, the woman has a headache or feels badly there is a lot of her work that she must let slide until the next day. She has no boss with a watchful eye on her. A man has to keep on his tiptoes all the time if he expects to hold his job.

Of course, there are plenty of women who are always over-run with their work, who have never taught their babies to take naps, who never have a minute when they are not driven and harassed with their work. But the point is that the housewife is not a person who could systematize their labor and apply a few efficiency methods that could soon discover that they could find plenty of leisure. The best proof of this is that there are many women all about whose houses are spotless, whose food is well cooked and whose children are well taken care of, who have no more to do than read the new books and who never even dream that they are overworked.

Of course, you will say that a woman's work is more monotonous than man's. It is lonelier, but I doubt its being more monotonous. Everything I do day after day as your daily stunt is monotonous. Even being a movie queen is monotonous. Sweeping a room is no more monotonous than keeping kerosene or putting in steel rivets in a skyscraper or driving a taxi.

Women think that men's work is easy because they have never tried it. Men think that women's work is easy because they have never tried it. If they would swap jobs they would find that neither had a cinch and that when it comes to bringing home the bacon or frying it the labor is about fifty-fifty. But husbands and wives should not begrudge what they do for each other. Each should be glad that he or she makes life pleasant and easier for the other.

DOROTHY DIX.

EAR MISS DIX—My mother and father have never saved a cent; and have always lived high. I have married a wife who sews, cuts vegetables and does in every way, none of which my mother has ever done. No, my father never did, and my parents insist on living with us, but my wife will not let it. My mother is not willing to cut her expenses in any way. She always asked money of me. Shall I give my parents money on the sly, as wife would object if she knew? What shall I tell my mother? I cannot see every one.

X. Y. Z.

Answer—Your wife's right in refusing to have your parents live with you because of her sensible ways and their extravagant ones there would be a perpetual conflict which would drive you crazy and destroy your ability to do your own work. But certainly you cannot let your parents starve, so the best thing for you to do is to decide just how much money you can afford to give them to live on and tell them frankly that they will have to keep their expenses within this amount. Make your mother understand that she will have to give up her luxurious way of living.

I think that there is nothing more terrible for all concerned than the way many men and women go along blithely spending every cent they make, living up to their income to the last dollar and then dumping themselves on their children to be supported when they might have made themselves independent if they had practiced any self-denial.

For young people have a hard enough time as it is to get along and make ends meet, and to have father's and mother's support saddled upon them is the straw that breaks the camel's back.

Shawlinen Lake, May 31.—The annual shareholders' meeting of the B.L.A.A. was held on Saturday evening. There was a good attendance. E. M. Walbank, president, occupied the chair, and read the report of the year's activities. In company with other organizations of a similar nature the continued depression has had an adverse effect on earnings. The finance statement showed a small loss on the year's business, due mainly to buying furnishings for the new hall. The estimated value of the company's holdings, building, land and equipment is $11,400, and the outstanding debt on furnishings is about $700. An effort will be made to make greater use of the hall, and to this end F. L. Watson was engaged as secretary. Watson was a soldier on June 1, Mr. Watson is a returned soldier, and has had considerable experience with sporting clubs.

E. M. Walbank, who has acted as secretary-treasurer for a number of years, tendered his resignation, and was accorded a hearty vote of thanks for his long services. The three retiring directors were S. J. Heald, Dan O'Sullivan and W. N. Kennedy. S. J. Heald and D. O'Sullivan were re-elected together with E. M. Walbank. At the close of the general meeting the directors met and re-elected S. J. Heald, president; F. T. Gifford, vice-president, and Dennis Mason, secretary-treasurer.

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 1, 1933

Conflicting planetary aspects are active today, according to astrology. It is a warning for careful procedure in most mundane activities.

Special care should be exercised to thwart tendency toward dependency or pessimism. Good cheer should be sought.

Under this sway many dissensions and quarrels may be evident. Organizations religious and political, may be inclined to divide on these principles.

This may not be an auspicious way for certain lines of farming, but the outlook for agriculture is encouraging, the seers announce.

Just in the sign of Leo should improve the business of all places of amusement. Pictures should benefit.

Sensational productions for the screen are foretold and sweeping changes in standards of attainment as well as salary maximums are predicted.

Exploitation of political candidates and national problems through the medium of motion pictures is prophesied and warning is given that some sort of a sensation will be the end result.

Just as likely to be a time of business improvement, if the stars are rightly read, and the stock market will furnish added surprises.

Central Europe is to be even more interested than formerly in the international policies of the United States, astrologers foretell.

Many distinguished foreign visitors are to be cordially entertained in the summer months, and among them will be several whose secret missions should be investigated, the seers warn.

Young men and women are subject to the best rule of the stars at this time. College graduates of 1932 are to attain extraordinary success and fame, it is pronounced.

Under this rule of the planets there may be a temptation to write love letters and the signs seem to presage good luck.

Persons whose birth date it is have the augury of a year of prosperity. Friends may be a bit disappointing, if business is transacted with them.

Children born on this day probably will be vigorous of mind and body, practical and true. The subjects of this sign, Taurus, know how to succeed.

Mr. Brigham Young, Mormon leader, was born on this day, 1801. Others who have celebrated it as a birthday include Charles Davenport, 1856; Nicholas James Filion, 1860; James H. Hargis, 1862; H. Field, 1871; lawyer and statesman; Samuel Hahn, 1879; noted jurist.

Buenos Aires, May 31.—Damage estimated at $800,000, has been done to the telephone properties in Buenos Aires and suburbs and 30,000 patrons left without service as a result of strikers' activities. The telephone company gave the figures in a communique issued to-day.

H. F. Alexander On First Trip To-night

Will Sail For California Ports
From Victoria With Capacity
Passenger List

Many Local People Leave; Sailing Excitement Broadcast From Seattle

Victoria's outer docks will, for the first time this season, see the big hull and hear the familiar whistle of the Pacific Steamship Company's crack liner H. F. Alexander this evening shortly after 8 o'clock when she arrives from Seattle on her way to San Francisco and Los Angeles. She will put to sea at 10 o'clock. This is her second season of calls at Victoria, and she will sail from this port each Tuesday evening until well into September. Capt. Fred Nystrom will have command of the big liner.

A full list of northwest passengers will sail. Many Victoria and Vancouver people will be among those on board, the Vancouver contingent arriving this afternoon by the S. Prince Margaret. Several people who arrived this morning from the Orient are also going south aboard the "H. F."

Among the Victoria passengers will be: Mr. and Mrs. A. V. King, Anderson Avenue; Mrs. Muriel Forbes; Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Hammett, Linden Avenue; Miss Otho Scott; and Miss Constance Davis of the staff of the Queen Alexandra Sanatorium at Mill Bay; Miss E. M. MacRae of the Canadian Bank of Commerce staff; Mrs. William Erickson, Miss Vivian Wylie, Peter O'Neill and Mr. and Mrs. J. K. Armstrong.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank M. Sutton and Mr. and Mrs. H. I. Smith arrived here this morning from the Orient by the S. President Jefferson, and are spending the day here. They will go south by the H. F. Alexander. Another passenger for the California liner who arrived by the Jefferson is Tozo Yahata, Los Angeles, returning from a trip to his parents in Hiroshima, Japan. He sailed from San Francisco two months ago by the Matsui Maru.

BROADCAST SAILING
Something new in sailing day celebrations took place in Seattle when the "H. F." sailed at 4 o'clock this afternoon. The scene at the dock, the crowds, the hurry, the bustle and the color of sailing day was broadcast for the first time on the Pacific Coast. Special telephone lines were strung to the docks and ganplank of the liner and northwest radio listeners heard the noise of departure. Ken Stuart, Seattle radio announcer, described the sailing and prominent passengers said a few words in the microphone. The musical background was provided by the ship's orchestra.

The H. F. Alexander, the fastest coastal ship in the world, served as a transport on the Atlantic during the World War. She landed more troops per day than thousands of other ships in this service. She made twenty trips through the war zone, steaming a total of 72,000 miles. She made the round trip between the United States and Europe, while in war service, in 14 days, 4 1/2 hours, landing 30,000 troops in France in eight months.

Placed in coastwise service in 1922, she operated between California ports and Seattle direct, until last season, when a call at Victoria was included on her weekly southbound voyage. Every week she travels 2,328 miles on her round trip between the northwest and the Pacific Coast. In coastwise service alone, she has steamed approximately 768,000 miles.

Harry de Grandpre will be purser on the "H. F." this season and H. C. Proctor will be back in his old position as chief steward.

Ships Are Due From Japan and England

The N.Y.K. liner Shidzuoka Maru will reach Race Rocks at 7 o'clock tomorrow evening, on her way into Victoria from Japan, according to wireless advice received in Victoria this morning by Harry Clark, local agent, from the captain of the ship. After passing medical inspection at the William Head quarantine station she will dock at the Ogden Point piers shortly after 8 o'clock.

For Victoria the Shidzuoka Maru has several passengers and a parcel of general cargo. She will proceed to Seattle after completing business here.

Thursday morning will see the arrival here of the Holland-America motorship Deftdijk, on her way into Victoria from Japan, according to wireless advice received in Victoria this morning by Harry Clark, local agent, from the captain of the ship. She sailed from San Francisco direct for Victoria at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon. She is coming in from Rotterdam and London by way of the Panama Canal.

There are 140 tons of general cargo aboard the Deftdijk for discharge at Victoria. Before the ship proceeds to Vancouver sixty tons of local freight will be put aboard for the return trip to Europe. There are also six passengers aboard for Victoria.

MOVIE PARTY GOING NORTH

SS. Victoria Will Take Group to Point Barrow to Film Picture "The Eskimo"

Seattle, May 31.—W. S. Vandyke, moving picture director, and a party of twenty-four arrived here yesterday from the south and began outfitting for an expedition to Point Barrow, Alaska, to film a picture there.

The party, which will be gone from eight months to a year, will sail Thursday on the Ss. Victoria for Nome. The trading schooner Nanuk sailed several days ago for the north with the bulk of their supplies and will take them to Point Barrow.

"We are taking more than 700 tons of supplies," Van Dyke said. "The 'Trader Horn' was child's play with what this will be."

Only three members of the expedition, those who will play the parts of members of the Northwest Mounted Police, will appear in the picture, he added. The novel, "The Eskimo," is to be filmed. "We will pick our entire cast from the native Eskimos of Point Barrow," he said. "We hope we have luck with them."

Point Barrow is ice-locked upwards of ten months of the year and once the expedition arrives there the only way to return to civilization will be by dog team, or by flying, to Nome, between 500 and 600 miles away.

LIQUOR SHIP IS CAPTURED

Coastguard Destroyer Takes Fleet Run-Runner With Her
$12,000 Liquor Cargo

Machine Gun Battle Waged
and Campers Are Given
Thrills

Hither Hills, N.Y., May 31.—The crack of machine-gun fire aroused campers in the state park yesterday, to watch three coast guard vessels corner a speedy rum runner and force her to beach a $12,000 liquor cargo.

The crew leaped out on the sand and escaped, but not before the pilot had been struck in the arm and shoulder by rum-runner bullets, the witnesses said.

Carrying 350 cases of liquor, the seventy-five-foot Margaret was heading for Gardner's Bay when sighted by destroyer 400. It gave chase, but the rum ship was faster, as it skirted the coast. A second destroyer headed directly for the fugitive, which veered and skinned seaward. Then a fast and skilful patrol boat joined the chase and the Margaret was surrounded with machine gun fire rain-falling in three directions. Dodging desperately, the boat headed for the beach.

After guardsmen found the liquor, they towed the Margaret to New London, Conn.

DIRECT RELIEF FOR NANAIMO

Unemployment Committee
Recommends That Present
System Be Abandoned

Special to The Times
Nanaimo, May 31.—The unemployment committee of the city council yesterday evening recommended that the present system of distributing relief be abandoned and that a new scheme of direct relief be instituted. The committee suggested that payment of direct relief be made by cheque on the basis of eight hours with $1.20 a week, the number of days to be divided into three parts per month to distribute earnings. The council supported Alderman Kerr's motion requesting the Dominion Government to make it a condition of free of stamp duty. A communication from the National Sweepstake Association, which was received and filed, said that it would be better to have sweepstakes here than send millions out of the country. The amendment to take care of unemployment rather than depend on something that is "up in the air." He was not greatly impressed with government control, citing the P.G.E. and Canadian National. Alderman Dixon, moving an amendment, thought individuals should spend their dollars as they saw fit, and it would be better to have sweepstakes here than send millions out of the country.
